Demand for House Connections Large.

More than 7,000 people of the city are being served by the new sewer system, the number of connections now in use being 246. When the inspection of the system was made by the Acting Governor and the heads of departments on Monday there was a flow of five inches through the sewer, into the tank or reservoir. There are now in the office of the Superintendent of Public Works many applications for connections with the system, but owing to the shortage of plumbers in the city there are few being made at this time.

The greatest use of the sewers is made from the Ewa side of Nuuanu stream, where connections are made from the many tenement houses. This puts the system at the disposal of more than 4,000 people at once. On the Waikiki side of the stream the connections made are principally of residences, which accounts for the discrepancy in the number of users of the new conduits. As soon as it is possible for the connections to be made there will be many put in on this side of the stream, and from the disposition to provide the houses with proper connections it is expected that there will be a general use made of the improved health conditions before the winter is past.

The failure of the Legislature to pass an appropriation for the sewers will tell heavily on the benefits from them, as there was asked $20,000 for the completion of the outfall portion of the work. There are many portions of the work yet incomplete, but the principal points which the Superintendent of Public Works wanted touched were the extension of the main discharge pipes and the further construction of the relief pipes. It was the intention to run the regular pipes for discharge out to the bell buoy, but now the system must be used as it stands. The relief system consists of pipe which runs now to the rifle butts, and which it is necessary to extend much further to secure all the benefits of the lines. This line of pipes has for its purpose the carrying off of a sudden rush of waters, which would run into the sea from the full reservoir, by gravity.

Superintendent Boyd is now engaged in hearing and making a decision upon the appeal of the contractors, Vincent & Belser, from the report of the engineer, which made the firm of contractors liable to a deduction, for leakage. The amount of the deduction would approximate $1,500, and the loss by leakage is accounted for in such way that there is foundation given for the claim for payment on the part of the contractors. The argument made yesterday afternoon by Mr. Vincent was that the firm must not be made liable for the leakages which come from the use of faulty pipes. The pipe for the system was furnished by the Government, and there were some faulty joints, and some which were damaged in transportation, so that while no imperfection could be detected there was considerable loss. One joint of pipe, which was taken up by the contractor, showed no visible break, but the loss of water from it was nearly twenty-five gallons a minute. The contractor argues that when material was passed by the engineer in charge, there should be no charge against the contractor.

There is another point made that the method of determining the amount of leakage was not accurate. There were turned into the pipes the flow of three artesian wells and the amount of water from them was measured. The amount of water which reached the outfall was next measured, and the resultant factor was charged to leakage. This it is said is not sufficiently accurate to furnish a basis for the actual leaks of the system and Mr. Vincent has protested against the conclusion so reached. Another point that the contractor makes is that since the firm has been compelled to discount the Territorial paper at the banks at 5 per cent, the loss on this item has been about $1,500, and if to this is added the sum for leaks, there will be no profit in the entire work. Superintendent Boyd will give the matter thorough investigation before making his decision.

WAS NOT VAN TASSEL WHO DIED

The Man Whom the Sharks
Ate Was Named
Lawrence.

It appears that Van Tassel, the aeronaut, is still living and that the man who fell a victim to Hawaiian sharks in his name many years ago, was an employee named Lawrence. The real Van Tassel gave this version of the matter lately to the Sunday Chronicle: For twelve of his first thirteen years of ballooning, Van Tassel made ascensions on holidays and at fairs along the Pacific Coast. On October 29, 1889, he sailed away from San Francisco for a two years' tour of the world, but time flew swiftly, and when, recently, the Nippon Maru set him ashore at his place of starting he found that he had been gone nearly a dozen years. With him when he sailed into the west was Joe Lawrence, known professionally as Joe Van Tassel, but Lawrence did not come back. The world has already heard his story. At Honolulu, the first stopping place on the trip, an exhibition and parachute jump was given before merry King Kalakaua. Only one aeronaut was needed, and Lawrence thought it an honor to be that one.

"I'm going to jump on your palace today, your highness," he said to the King just before he started upward. He cut loose above the palace, but the wind blew the parachute out beyond the coral reefs and he fell into a sea of sharks. The Zealandia, sailing in at the time, caught sight of him and sent a boat to his relief, but before aid could reach him both he and his parachute had disappeared, and only a streak of crimson and a school of hungry sharks marked the scene of his undoing.

SLEEP ON STRAW MATTING.

"If you want to sleep in coolness and comfort during the hot weather sleep on straw matting," said a naval officer who has recently returned from the Asiatic station to a New York Sun writer. "Not on the floor," he continued, "though, of course, that would be cooler, but go to some carpet dealer with the exact measurements of your bed and have him sew strips of matting together to fit, afterward ironing the seams down hard. Put your matting between the sheet and the mattress and you'll know what comfort is. You will have all the original softness of the bed with none of its heat. The coarser the matting the better, as it will allow better ventilation."

PACIFIC UNION OIL CO.

Located in the Famous Coalina Oil Fields of California.

Proven oil lands, completely surrounded by as rich oil producing wells as there are in the State, yielding from 50 to 250 barrels per day.

Contract prices for oil at the Coalina wells, 70 cents per barrel.

With twenty-five producing wells of 100 barrels each per day, you can make your own calculation as to profit.

The oil industry in California is in its infancy, yet many fortunes have been made by judicious and lucky investments in oil stock. Many more will be made in the near future.

The average advance on original sales of oil stock in twenty leading companies in California has been from $1 to $108 per share.

Oil lands have advanced from $1.25 to $1,000 and $2,000 per acre.

When the Pacific Union Oil Company has a number of producing wells on its property, its stock will have the same show for even a greater advance, as some oil stock has advanced from $1 to $1,500 per share.

The Pacific Union Oil Company has no unskilled officers, and is controlled by well known gentlemen of integrity, who will see that the money derived from the sale of stock will be legitimately applied to the development of its property.

For further information, apply to J. H. FISHER & CO., Stock and Bond Brokers, and Hawaiian agents for the sale of a limited amount of Pacific Union Oil Company stock, Stangenwald building, Merchant street.
